

SET IN STONE

TWO DAY WORKSHOP ON TRADITIONAL STONEMASONRY IN CORK CITY

❧ Sat 6th April & Sun 7th April ❧

The city of Cork is renowned for its magnificent built heritage. However there is little information on the wealth of skills, artistry and tradition that created these buildings. This workshop will demonstrate and celebrate the rich heritage of stone mason skills in Cork City in an interactive and practical manner. It will also give advice on the care and maintenance of these important elements of the fabric of Cork City's built heritage.

The workshop will run by trainers Christian Helling, Julia Gebel, Ken Curran and in association with experts in their field Carl Kennedy, Jim Fahy, Mathew Maw, Victor Franchet and Daniel Henkel. These trainers all have expertise in traditional stonemasonry in Cork city, local sources for stone and quarries, work fashions and styles and stone conservation techniques.

Practical demonstration on topics covering lime and hot lime mortar, architectural stone carving, letter cutting, dry stone walling, stone repair and maintenance, installation of cut stone elements and an opportunity to work on a limestone arch construction.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

The workshop is aimed primarily at heritage groups and organisations, members of the public, and property owners. However limited places are available to architects, builders, craftspeople, local authority staff, planners, and other practitioners.

HOW TO FIND THE VENUE

TRAINERS

KENNETH CURRAN:

Anthropologist/ Archaeologist, Anthropologist/ Archaeologist, Dry Stone Waller and Stonemason.

Over the past 10 years working in stone Kenneth Curran has grown his skill set and established himself as a traditional and creative stone craft practitioner. He now specialises in Dry Stone building and old stone buildings advice and conservation, with particular emphasis on historic structures and repair of same using traditional techniques and mortars. In 2009 he was a co-founder of the Dry Stone Wall Association of Ireland and secretary from 2012 to 2016.

JULIA GEBEL

Before coming to Ireland in 2006, Julia Gebel completed her Master Craftsman's Diploma in Architectural Stonecutting and Sculpting in Germany. Specializing in the conservation of stone and masonry, she has since worked on numerous private and public conservation projects, including the recent conservation of Cormac's Chapel for the Office of Public Works. She trained in stone conservation with the Centro Europeo per i Mestieri del Patrimonio in Italy and completed the Postgraduate Diploma in Building Repair and Conservation at Trinity College Dublin.

CHRISTIAN HELLING

Christian Helling is a fully qualified Mason and Stonecarver. Originally from Germany he owns a successful Stonemasonry and Stonecarving business in Cork for the past 10 years, mainly undertaking specialised stone conservation works and hand crafted custom stone carvings. His expertise is well known throughout Ireland. He has been involved in many exiting Heritage projects, such as the Conservation works on the Town Wall in Bandon, Spike Island, UCC and Belvelly Castle. Christian is on the Directors Board of the Drystonewall Association of Ireland and also holds the position of Head of Training. He has a passion for stone and it his mission to promote and preserve the traditional skills of working with stone.

SOCIETY FOR THE PROTECTION OF ANCIENT BUILDINGS IRELAND (SPAB)

In early 2016 a group of Irish SPAB Scholars and Fellows joined together to form SPAB Ireland. The SPAB Ireland is newest branch of the SPAB, and is an active and friendly community that aims to protect and promote the wonderful national built heritage on the whole island of Ireland. A member of this group will give a short talk after the workshop dinner on Saturday night
